Swine flue program moving ahead rapidly, Bond says

JEFFERSON CITY -- Gov. Christopher S. Bond has reassured Missouri residents that the swine flu immunization program is moving ahead rapidly in the state, and he urged all citizens to participate in the program when the vaccine becomes available.

Bond said, "I regard this program as a top priority in the area of health over the next three months. The results would be very costly in human terms if an immunization program is not conducted and an influenza epidemic occurs. I urge all Missourians to take advantage of this opportunity to avoid a serious illness or more disastrous consequences."

The governor noted that delivery of the vaccine has been delayed while attorneys for the drug firms manufacturing the vaccine have tried to resolve technical issues related to the question of liability. Congress is attempting to resolve the problem as quickly as possible.

"We have every reason to believe the first shots will be available toward the middle of September," the governor stated.

"In the meantime, the Division of Health in Missouri's Department of Social Services has launched an all-out drive to assure that at least 3.7 million Missourians are immunized by Nov. 30. To do this, 79 counties have already set tentative schedules for mass public clinics to be conducted simultaneously with immunization in private physicians' offices. Meetings with school and public health nurses have succeeded in arranging for 72 school clinics. Finally, professional and educational training sessions are being conducted with the medical groups and working groups in each county in order to start immunization with arrival of the first vaccine," Bond said.

Anyone with questions about the swine flu immunization program may call a toll-free telephone number, 800-392-8269.

Cooper's agency is responsible for all state construction contracts.

"We will wait one year to be sure the siltation problem has been taken care of before committing any more funds," said Wilson. "The boat docks, which had to be removed prior to dredging, will remain in storage until we are sure they will be functional if reinstalled. However, the boat launching facility and parking area will remain open to the public during the next 12 months while siltation of the harbor is under observation."

The Corps is optimistic about the latest dredging efforts. According to Jack Niemi, chief of engineering design for the Corps, "All initial indications are favorable, e.g., the eddy is no longer in or near the mouth of the harbor. However, we feel an entire cycle of one year is necessary for a complete evaluation."

"I know," said Wilson, "of the intense community interest in this project and the decision to 'hold' was difficult. It is vital, however, that in our efforts to accomplish our goal of a good facility, that we do not carelessly barge ahead with taxpayers' dollars."

The marina project was conceived in the late 1950's when studies showed that boating was becoming a more popular sport.

A Corps report, issued in 1960, stated that "development of the recreational potential of the Mississippi River in the vicinity of Trail of Tears State Park is restricted by lack of harbor facilities for small crafts."

Local citizens appealed to the Parks and Recreation Division, then the Missouri State Park Board, to build a marina facility at Trail of Tears. The division contracted with the Corps to

Spainhower latest Senate potential

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) -- Add the name of James Spainhower to those being considered as possible successors to Jerry Litton for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination.

The state treasurer says that if the state Democratic Committee asks him to withdraw from his treasurer's race and run for the Senate against Republican Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, "I would willingly and happily do so."

Spainhower's announcement Saturday capped a week of political shocks and surprises, which began with Litton's political triumph turned personal tragedy.

As the votes were being counted and the Chillicothe Democrat's lead piled up in the Democratic race for the U.S. Senate, a plane crash took his life, as well as that of his three-member family and two other persons.

Now, the 60 members of the state committee have the job of filling Litton's big political shoes, and must somehow choose a candidate who'll be agreeable to most of the 850,000 Democrats who voted during Tuesday's primary.

"From a personal standpoint, I refuse to add to the difficulty of what the committee must do," Spainhower said before announcing his availability to a Saturday afternoon news conference which followed a meeting of the party's executive committee.

But the state treasurer was adding difficulty, in the minds of some supporters of former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who finished second to Litton and two percentage points ahead of U.S. Rep. James Symington.

Hearnes supporter Benjamin Goins, the St. Louis license collector who is a member of the executive committee, told reporters that the second choice of party members should now become the party choice "if the democratic system is to prevail."

"To deny Warren Hearnes an opportunity to run as the Democratic candidate would completely destroy the Democratic party in this state," Goins said.

Litton collected 45 per cent of the vote Tuesday, compared with 27 per cent for Hearnes and 25 per cent for Symington, who has now withdrawn his name from consideration.

While more than 380,000 persons casting ballots in the Democratic U.S. Senate primary chose Litton to carry the party banner statewide, the decision on who will be his successor rests in the hands of 31 of the 60 members of the state committee.

A simple majority will be needed to name the nominees, but getting that majority won't be so simple.

In addition to Spainhower and Hearnes, the names of U.S. Rep. William Hungate and Charles E. Curry of Kansas City have also been mentioned as possible candidates.

It is entirely possible the closing ceremonies at Montreal may ring down the curtain for all time on the International Olympics as traditionally conceived.

Let's hope it doesn't happen.

The death of the Olympiad will mean that international politics, selfish and cynical, has finally taken the fun out of games.

We might as well face it: The world really is subdivided into three spheres — East, West and the underdeveloped "third," and that fact is becoming too overwhelming to accommodate human interchange, amateur sports on a global basis or honest differences of ideas.

The concept of individual excellence of athletes who want to do what they do better than anybody else — regardless of race, faith or nationality — has just about had it.

There will be an Olympiad in 1980 — summer sports in Moscow and winter events in the U.S. Each will be lavish in its presentation. Athletes will be sheltered as never before, and the competition will be breathtaking. Both hosts have promised not to bar any country from taking part. Superpowers are the big kids on the block. They must stand above bickering among the neighbors.

Nevertheless, the 1980 events may mark the end of amateur athletics on an international scale. Apparently, there is little room in today's world for the lonely runner.

Montreal accepted a long-standing trend. Before the stop watches were clicked on, it became clear that politics — national self-interest if that is the term — had finally replaced the rewards of individual excellence.

Remember that for political reasons, and no other, a quarter of the 119 countries that were to compete in Canada withdrew. More than 600 of the 8,340 athletes on hand were barred from competing in the games on orders from their own governments.

It had nothing to do with any rules of international sports competition. Most of those who were benched really wanted to take part. They were pulled out because Government "A" wanted to influence the handling of foreign relations on the part of Government "B." The Chinese from Taiwan were repugnant to the governing Chinese Communists in Peking — politically, that is — so Canada found it expeditious to rule them out.

The black Governments of Africa were offended at the thought that white New Zealanders would play rugby in South Africa, so they decided not to let their athletes compete in the Olympics with New Zealand.

In each case, governments acted on circumstances that had nothing to do with the merits of individual athletes who wanted only to compete with their peers from other lands in the events for which they'd trained.

Actually, as contests among amateurs, the games have been phony for years — ever since the Kremlin recognized the quadrennial extravaganza as a propaganda medium to enhance the world stature of the Soviet Union.

Russia wasn't the first. Hitler tried it in 1936. But it was Moscow's Communist bureaucracy — followed by other Eastern European regimes — that made a mockery of the Olympics. Soviet athletes are no more amateurs than are Soviet generals, and everybody knows it.

To equate Communist-trained specialists with self-supporting athletes of the West who compete for the sheer fun of it is absurd.

Until recent decades, the Olympics were not treated as nationalistic contests. The idea was individual excellence — be the winner American, Slav, white, black or yellow.

That's as it should be. Let's hope the games can be restored to that role. It would be an international accomplishment of olympian proportions if somebody could figure out a way to take the politics out of sports.

Otherwise, the Olympiad is an irritant, rather than an incentive for peace on earth and good will among its people.

WATCH THOSE FEET!

Would you believe that a man was shot to death in Detroit, Michigan, because he had bad smelling feet—at least in the opinion of the "friend" who plugged him when he took his shoes off? According to an Associated Press dispatch this actually happened and was duly noted in police records as a homicide precipitated by "allegedly odoriferous feet."

The news story notes that Detroit saw 751 killings in 1973, with the 1974 murder pace running 27 percent above last year's record rate. Most of the murderers and their victims are acquainted and local residents. Both perpetrator and victim are generally black males, about half of them single and 40 percent unemployed. Guns figure prominently in the killings, and gun control has been suggested as a remedy. Plainly, this is ridiculous. The problem is a social one that will not be solved simply by outlawing firearms.

After all, anyone willing to kill another person so casually will not hesitate to devote all his resources to buying an illegal gun at a high price in order to retain his position as big man on the block. And there are plenty of criminal elements eager to enter the lucrative illegal gun trade. For those financially embarrassed, there will always be a knife, an ice pick, a club or a handy brick or baseball bat.

Social problems of such magnitude will not succumb to simplistic answers. Nothing less than new opportunities and deep-seated cultural change is likely to change the outlook in a neighborhood where you can get shot for taking off your shoes.

MISSOURI WHEAT CROP SETTING A FEW RECORDS OF ITS OWN

By JOHN A. DVORAK
A Member of the Staff
Kansas City Times

Although overshadowed by the vast, high-producing wheat fields of Kansas, the Missouri wheat crop is setting some records of its own this year.

With harvest work nearly finished it appears that Missouri farmers will gather in just over 51 million bushels of winter wheat, highest total since 1967, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service in Columbia said yesterday.

For the fourth consecutive year, acreage planted in wheat and the total harvest increased, Mark Crawford, an official with the reporting service, said.

The yield per acre, however, is expected to be down. Crawford said the average yield this summer is 31 bushels an acre, a drop from the 33 bushels an acre recorded in 1975. A cold snap in early May that caused frost damage in central Missouri wheat fields is a major reason for the lower yield, Crawford said.

Harvest work is about 96 percent complete in Missouri, with counties on the northern edge of the state expected to finish by this weekend, Crawford said.

The wheat harvest in Missouri doesn't compare to Kansas, where a crop of about 320 million bushels is expected. But the 1976 Missouri harvest will be up about 80 percent from 1970 totals, when just 28.3 million bushels were recorded.

From 1970 to 1973, Missouri farmers planted less than 1 million acres in wheat a year and harvested no more than about 36 million bushels annually.

In 1974 acreage jumped to 1.3 million, and in 1975 to 1.5 million. Yields rose from 40 million bushels in 1974 to 48.5 million in 1975.

Crawford said that except for the hilly, forested Ozark region, most Missouri counties produce at least a few hundred thousand bushels of wheat a year. Biggest producers are in the Bootheel—Dunklin, New Madrid, Stoddard, Scott and

Mississippi Counties, he said.

The growing season is about two weeks longer in the southeast corner of Missouri, so farmers there are able to harvest their wheat by early summer, then plant soybeans for harvest later in the year.

Almost all wheat farmers in the Bootheel double-crop, said E.B. Nace, an agriculture engineering specialist with the University of Missouri Extension Service in New Madrid.

In autumn, he said, farmers plant winter wheat, which not only means that two crops a year can be harvested but also that the land is protected from wind and water erosion over the winter months.

Wheat yields in New Madrid County were close to 35 bushels an acre this year, an increase over 1975 and 1974, Nace said.

"We had a lot of 40-bushel wheat this year," he said.

Yields were also up in some sections of northwest Missouri, like in Worth County.

"We've had one of the best years we've ever had," Donald Null, a University of Missouri extension agronomist in Grant City, said.

Elevator operators say they are handling far more wheat than usual, he reported.

Last year drought and disease hurt the wheat crop in Worth County, but this year rain fell just when it was needed, he said.

Yields in Worth County have ranged from 30 to 33 bushels an acre, with some farmers saying they harvested as much as 60 bushels an acre, Null said.

The yields are above average for Worth County, Null said. "We have years in which we have 17, 18 or 19 bushels an acre," he said.

WITH JUSTICE FOR NONE...

Those critics of the American judicial system who complain that in our solicitude for the rights of defendants we have forgotten about the rights of victims, and of society, have a growing body of case history to support them.

Consider the case of a man who was convicted in 1970 by a Portage County, Ohio, jury on the charge of abducting and raping an 11-year-old girl.

That was in 1970. Throughout

1971, 1972, 1973, 1974 and 1975, the case made its slow progress through the appeals system until last November, when the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati reversed the conviction on the grounds that a prior conviction of the defendant had been mentioned during the rape trial.

A defendant's criminal record may not be brought out in court, unless the defendant agrees to testify about it. This is no doubt as it should be. The knowledge that a defendant has a criminal record could unquestionably have some influence in the minds of jurors.

However, the assumption of the courts, well-founded or not, seems to be that such influence would be so overwhelmingly prejudicial that a jury composed of ordinary citizens in a community would be incapable of keeping the knowledge about a defendant's past in proper perspective and reaching a judgment of guilt or innocence solely on the basis of the facts brought out in the immediate case at hand.

But what if a person has not merely one or two unrelated prior convictions or arrests but a whole string of them, and all of them for the same or similar offenses? Should a jury be kept in ignorance of this?

Perhaps so, but should judges also be blind to a defendant's past record in passing sentence, as they appear to have been in regard to the defendant mentioned above?

This defendant had, in fact, a record of some 25 arrests in Arizona between 1963 and 1966 for indecent exposure and assault on girls under 16. He also had a prior conviction in another Ohio county in 1966 for assault with intent to rape. That conviction was reversed on appeal and reduced to assault and battery, for which he received a six-month suspended sentence.

More, he had another prior conviction in Portage County for assaulting a young girl. That conviction was also overturned on appeal and was never retried because the 1970 trial intervened.

We are now up to 1976. The defendant has just been reconvicted by another Portage County jury on the 1970 charge.

Has justice finally been the Pentagon, however, if the Pentagon dropped its investigation of its committee, it was suggested.

As Stewart put it in his memo for the plumbers: "Sen. Stennis indicated that he intended to initiate an investigation of the Pentagon because of its investigation in this matter. Informally, we were advised by the Stennis Committee that if we dropped the investigation within the Pentagon that the Stennis Committee would drop its investigation."

Added Stewart curtly: "Our investigation was terminated."

Whether Nixon was intimidated by Stennis' tactics or merely wanted him for a friend, the White House didn't push the investigation of the Stennis committee. There was more enthusiasm for investigating Nixon's critics.

Orders for this investigation were relayed by David Young, chief of the White House plumbers, to the Pentagon's chief counsel, Fred Buzhardt. The gunshow work was directed by Stewart, who reported his findings in a Feb. 13, 1973, memo which is still hidden in Pentagon files.

The memo was sharply critical of Sen. Church, an outspoken Nixon critic, who heads a subcommittee on terminating emergency executive edicts.

Stewart reported that some of the subcommittee's documents "did not bear proper classification covers and were... stored in an ordinary cabinet. Others were transmitted without the proper double envelopes and special markings."

Employees without security clearance handled classified documents, the memo charged. Stewart also found that several classified documents on herbicide use in Southeast Asia were provided to Church. The last delivery was made on Aug. 3, 1972. Within a few days, the Washington Post carried a major story based on the classified herbicide data.

Concluded Stewart: "It appears that the security leak in this matter came from Sen. Church's office inadvertently, but this cannot be stated positively."

The reason for Stewart's unwillingness to draw a final decision was that the Defense Department had obstructed his investigation. As Stewart explained in his memo, the department declined to obtain "appropriate clearances" for him to interview Church and his staff.

Subsequently, Church directed the Senate investigation of the Central Intelligence Agency, with a minimum of security problems. Most of the leaks came out of the House Intelligence Committee.

Most leaked documents contain legitimate news that the public is entitled to read. Washington officials tend to use security stamps to cover up their embarrassments. Since there are no censorship stamps in Washington, officials often censor the news by classifying it.

Footnote: A spokesman for Stennis said the senator had "no recollection" of the incident described by Stewart. Church said he was satisfied that no serious leaks came from his office. A spokesman for his subcommittee conceded there had been some minor security violations but denied they were as drastic as Stewart claimed. Spokesman for Jackson, Fulbright and Proxmire, also denied any improper leaks.

served? Not if his attorneys can help it. They plan to appeal the conviction on the grounds that a confession used as evidence was not made voluntarily.

Fortunately, this man has never killed anyone and, one can only hope, has done no lasting harm to his victims. But if his past record is a guide—and what other guide is there?—he is unfit to remain loose in society and can be expected to be in trouble with the law again and again in the future. In truth, he is as much a victim of our revolving-door system of justice as any of the young girls he has preyed upon.

Indeed, beyond the question of the potential danger posed to society by this kind of sick individual, and others like him, there is the question of whether we are doing a defendant himself any favor by straining to protect his "rights" while ignoring entirely another right he should have—and that is a demonstrable need for psychiatric help. Or if help is not possible, at least restraint.

In the Midwest village where I grew up, one factory building had a two-story, spiral, slide-type fire escape mounted on the outside. From the bottom we kids would grasp the side walls and scurry to the summit, then toboggan down on our bellies or backsides with infinite gusto. An entire generation of boys maintained a decent sort of public relations with the factory officials, who knew that we came only to slide, never to smash or burn.

I returned, recently, for the first time in 18 years, and found that the factory had gone bankrupt and that its building had been demolished. I felt an extra tinge of sorrow for all those venturesome lads who could not now enjoy a small titillation of boyhood. I need not have grieved. A few hours later, I stopped at the beach of the nearby lake. My heart leaped, for there stood the factory fire escape, shiny as ever, supported on wrought-iron legs, a firm ladder now reaching to the top. In its final throes, the company had remembered a joy of boyhood.

Inside Labor

Some crucial lessons on inflation in Britain

Victor Riesel's guest columnist today holds the post in Queen Elizabeth's cabinet filled by Britannia's most legendary and historic leaders over the centuries. As the United Kingdom's "secretary of the treasury," his headache is as inflated as England's economy. From all this travail the U.K. has learned much. Other nations can too.

By the

RT. HON. DENIS HEALEY, MBE, MP, Chancellor of the Exchequer

LONDON — The experience of the last few years has shaken confidence all over the world in the possibility of getting back to the low levels of inflation and unemployment we enjoyed for nearly a quarter of a century after the end of World War II, when employment was sustained at record heights and the annual increase in prices was often little over 2 percent.

From 1973 to 1975, on the contrary, the average inflation for the industrial countries was 26 percent (12 percent a year), and this coincided with a big fall in industrial production, a big fall in living standards and the highest unemployment since the '30s. No one yet fully understands why we suffered from this combination of raging inflation and intolerable unemployment.

In the last 12 months unemployment has been rising less fast in nearly every country. The drop has been substantial in America, where inflation is also falling. But most countries are afraid of inflation rising again in the next 12 months. In the European Common Market as a whole inflation increased at an annual rate of 14 percent in the first four months of this year as compared with only 9 percent in the second half of last year.

Britain has been one of the exceptions to this rule. A year ago our inflation was running at the dizzy rate of 35 percent a year. It has already been cut by over half to just above 15 percent and we expect it to continue falling over the next 18 months, even though we are aiming at a rate of growth higher than we have ever sustained for so long in the past — and we are already on target to achieve it.

I make this point in no chauvinistic spirit. Inflation is still a good deal higher in Britain than in nearly all other industrial countries, and our post-war economic record has been far from brilliant. But I believe we have learned a lot from the mistakes of the past and perhaps some others may also learn from our experience, both good and bad.

The big lesson we have learned from the immediate past is that if the government allows demand to rise faster than the economy can sustain, you get bottlenecks all over industry, overheating, roaring inflation, a massive balance of payments deficit culminating in industrial paralysis. This is what happened to Britain in 1973 when the supply of money increased by 28 percent.

We are determined this shall never happen again. Last year, for example, the supply of money in Britain increased only 8 percent.

Now that recovery is under way, we believe we can do a great deal to reduce the risk of overheating by identifying the possible bottlenecks in advance and taking action to remove them. So we have directed investment incentives to areas where capacity would otherwise be lacking. We have stockpiled some essential materials like steel and coal. And we have trebled the amount of money available for training people in the skills we shall need.

But we believe that the key to achieving our objectives is to involve both sides of industry directly in the major issues of social and economic policy. Each of us has a special role. The government has the prime responsibility for managing the economy so that it can grow steadily without inflation — which is essential if we are to achieve full employment and to create the conditions in which industry will invest. The government also has the responsibility for helping to satisfy the social needs of working people — which is essential if we are to call successfully on them to perform their role.

Providing this is done, the trade unions can be expected to act in such a way as to enable growth to proceed without refueling inflation. If the government conducts its economic and monetary policies so as to rule out inflation, the number of jobs the economy can support will depend on the average cost of each job. Because our trade unions attach such importance to full employment they have agreed to limit wage increases for two years running to levels well below what is needed to compensate for price increases in the preceding year.

That is why our Trade Union Congress recently voted by a majority of almost 18-1 to limit pay increases in the next wage round to only 4.5 percent — likely to be lower than in practically all the Western developed countries. They have done this because they know that this is the only way of getting back to full employment and enabling Britain once again to pay her way in the world.

Equally important is our industrial relations. Last year we lost only a quarter as many days through strikes as in 1972. So far this year we have lost little over half as many days as in the same period last year.

But the government could not have won this cooperation from the trade unions if it had not shared their views about social priorities — about the importance of reducing inequalities in wealth and income, and giving the pensioners and the families first claim on what the nation can afford for social spending.

Now we expect the other side of industry to keep the prices of their products as low as possible and to put the profits they make during the period of recovery into providing jobs, by increasing working capital and new investment. We are now making strenuous efforts to end the arm's-length relationship between the government, the employers and the trade unions, which is one of the main reasons for Britain's disappointing economic performance in the past. We are all working together to improve our industrial performance and to restructure the obsolete areas of our economy.

We still have a long way to go before we can feel satisfied. But I believe that this new type of social consensus may have lessons to offer to other countries whose confidence in the future of the Western economic system has been shaken by the events of recent years.

Watergate Springs New Leaks

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — One Watergate secret never leaked out during all the investigations that brought down ex-President Richard Nixon. It's the story of how Nixon used the notorious White House plumbers to try to discredit his detractors on Capitol Hill.

The intent was to prove that Nixon's congressional critics were violating national security. The plumbers enlisted the Pentagon's top sleuth, W. Donald Stewart, to investigate security leaks on Capitol Hill.

He found alleged security breaches in the offices of Sens. Frank Church, D-Ida., William Fulbright, D-Ark., Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and William Proxmire, D-Wis. But the investigation also caught the venerable Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., in an incident of political blackmail.

The stern, stately Stennis not only is a symbol of Senate rectitude, but he is a staunch defender of existing establishments.

He was ready, therefore, to defend the presidency against the ravages of Watergate. Nixon was so sure of Stennis' loyalty that he later sought an agreement, permitting the Mississippi senator to listen to the damning White House tapes and to rule whether they were incriminating. After Stennis became implicated in the plumbers' probe, Nixon suddenly seemed to lose interest in it. The story of the abortive investigation is told by Stewart himself, now head of Stewart Security Services, in his unpublished memoirs.

It's a story that began in May, 1969, with the publication in the Washington Post of a report about scuttling atomic submarines. The sensitive information apparently came from a document that had been slipped to the Senate Armed Services Committee, which Stennis heads.

Stewart isolated seven military officers who had access to the document. Six of them offered to take lie detector tests. The seventh refused and hired a lawyer.

As Stewart zeroed in on the seventh officer, Stennis' office brought pressure on the Pentagon to halt the investigation. Stewart reported this backstage development in a memo for the White House plumbers.

He wrote that Stennis "became quite irritated because the Pentagon undertook (the) investigation." The angry senator threatened to investigate the Pentagon in retaliation. He would drop his investigation of

Although overshadowed by the vast, high-producing wheat fields of Kansas, the Missouri wheat crop is setting some records of its own this year.

With harvest work nearly finished it appears that Missouri farmers will gather in just over 51 million bushels of winter wheat, highest total since 1967, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service in Columbia said yesterday.

For the fourth consecutive year, acreage planted in wheat and the total harvest increased, Mark Crawford, an official with the reporting service, said.

The yield per acre, however, is expected to be down. Crawford said the average yield this summer is 31 bushels an acre, a drop from the 33 bushels an acre recorded in 1975. A cold snap in early May that caused frost damage in central Missouri wheat fields is a major reason for the lower yield, Crawford said.

Harvest work is about 96 percent complete in Missouri, with counties on the northern edge of the state expected to finish by this weekend, Crawford said.

The wheat harvest in Missouri doesn't compare to Kansas, where a crop of about 320 million bushels is expected. But the 1976 Missouri harvest will be up about 80 percent from 1970 totals, when just 28.3 million bushels were recorded.

From 1970 to 1973, Missouri farmers planted less than 1 million acres in wheat a year and harvested no more than about 36 million bushels annually.

In 1974 acreage jumped to 1.3 million, and in 1975 to 1.5 million. Yields rose from 40 million bushels in 1974 to 48.5 million in 1975.

Crawford said that except for the hilly, forested Ozark region, most Missouri counties produce at least a few hundred thousand bushels of wheat a year. Biggest producers are in the Bootheel—Dunklin, New Madrid, Stoddard, Scott and

Mississippi Counties, he said.

The growing season is about two weeks longer in the southeast corner of Missouri, so farmers there are able to harvest their wheat by early summer, then plant soybeans for harvest later in the year.

Almost all wheat farmers in the Bootheel double-crop, said E.B. Nace, an agriculture engineering specialist with the University of Missouri Extension Service in New Madrid.

In autumn, he said, farmers plant winter wheat, which not only means that two crops a year can be harvested but also that the land is protected from wind and water erosion over the winter months.

Wheat yields in New Madrid County were close to 35 bushels an acre this year, an increase over 1975 and 1974, Nace said.

"We had a lot of 40-bushel wheat this year," he said.

Yields were also up in some sections of northwest Missouri, like in Worth County.

"We've had one of the best years we've ever had," Donald Null, a University of Missouri extension agronomist in Grant City, said. Elevator operators say they are handling far more wheat than usual, he reported.

Last year drought and disease hurt the wheat crop in Worth County, but this year rain fell just when it was needed, he said.

Yields in Worth County have ranged from 30 to 33 bushels an acre, with some farmers saying they have harvested as much as 60 bushels an acre, Null said.

The yields are above average for Worth County, Null said. "We have years in which we have 17, 18 or 19 bushels an acre," he said.

WITH JUSTICE FOR NONE...

Those critics of the American judicial system who complain that in our solicitude for the rights of defendants we have forgotten about the rights of victims, and of society, have a growing body of case history to support them.

Consider the case of a man who was convicted in 1970 by a Portage County, Ohio, jury on the charge of abducting and raping an 11-year-old girl.

That was in 1970. Throughout the Pentagon, however, if the Pentagon dropped its investigation of his committee, it was suggested.

As Stewart put it in his memo for the plumbers: "Sen. Stennis indicated that he intended to initiate an investigation of the Pentagon because of its investigation in this matter. Informally, we were advised by the Stennis Committee that if we dropped the investigation within the Pentagon that the Stennis Committee would drop its investigation."

Added Stewart curtly: "Our investigation was terminated."

Whether Nixon was intimidated by Stennis' tactics or merely wanted him for a friend, the White House didn't push the investigation of the Stennis committee. There was more enthusiasm for investigating Nixon's critics.

Orders for this investigation were relayed by David Young, chief of the White House plumbers, to the Pentagon's chief counsel, Fred Buzhardt. The gumshoe work was directed by Stewart, who reported his findings in a Feb. 13, 1973, memo which is still hidden in Pentagon files.

The memo was sharply critical of Sen. Church, an outspoken Nixon critic, who heads a subcommittee on terminating emergency executive edicts.

Employees without security clearance handled classified documents, the memo charged. Stewart also found that several classified documents on her-

1971, 1972, 1973, 1974 and 1975, the case made its slow progress through the appeals system until last November, when the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati reversed the conviction on the grounds that a prior conviction of the defendant had been mentioned during the rape trial.

A defendant's criminal record may not be brought out in court, unless the defendant agrees to testify about it. This is no doubt as it should be. The knowledge that a defendant has a criminal record could unquestionably have some influence in the minds of jurors.

However, the assumption of the courts, well-founded or not, seems to be that such influence would be so overwhelmingly prejudicial that a jury composed of ordinary citizens in a community would be incapable of keeping the knowledge about a defendant's past in proper perspective and reaching a judgment of guilt or innocence solely on the basis of the facts brought out in the immediate case at hand.

But what if a person has not merely one or two unrelated prior convictions or arrests but a whole string of them, and all of them for the same or similar offenses? Should a jury be kept in ignorance of this?

Perhaps so, but should judges also be blind to a defendant's past record in passing sentence, as they appear to have been in regard to the defendant mentioned above?

This defendant had, in fact, a record of some 25 arrests in Arizona between 1963 and 1966 for indecent exposure and assault on girls under 16. He also had a prior conviction in another Ohio county in 1966 for assault with intent to rape. That conviction was reversed on appeal and reduced to assault and battery, for which he received a six-month suspended sentence.

More, he had another prior conviction in Portage County for assaulting a young girl. That conviction was also overturned on appeal and was never retried because the 1970 trial intervened.

We are now up to 1976. The defendant has just been reconvicted by another Portage County jury on the 1970 charge. Has justice finally been served? Not if his attorneys can help it. They plan to appeal the conviction on the grounds that a confession used as evidence was not made voluntarily.

Fortunately, this man has never killed anyone and, one can only hope, has done no lasting harm to his victims. But if his past record is a guide—and what other guide is there?—he is unfit to remain loose in society and can be expected to be in trouble with the law again and again in the future. In truth, he is as much a victim of our revolving-door system of justice as any of the young girls he has preyed upon.

Indeed, beyond the question of the potential danger posed to society by this kind of sick individual, and others like him, there is the question of whether we are doing a defendant himself any favor by straining to protect his "rights" while ignoring entirely another right he should have—and that is a demonstrable need for psychiatric help. Or if help is not possible, at least restraint.

In the Midwest village where I grew up, one factory building had a two-story, spiral, slide-type fire escape mounted on the outside. From the bottom we kids would grasp the side walls and scurry to the summit, then toboggan down on our bellies or backsides with infinite gusto. An entire generation of boys maintained a decent sort of public relations with the factory officials, who knew that we came only to slide, never to smash or burn.

I returned, recently, for the first time in 18 years, and found that the factory had gone bankrupt and that its building had been demolished. I felt an extra twinge of sorrow for all those venturesome lads who could not now enjoy a small titillation of boyhood. I need not have grieved. A few hours later, I stopped at the beach of the nearby lake. My heart leaped, for there stood the factory fire escape, shiny as ever, supported on wrought-iron legs, a firm ladder now reaching to the top. In its final throes, the company had remembered a joy of boyhood.

Some crucial lessons on inflation in Britain

Victor Riesel's guest columnist today holds the post in Queen Elizabeth's cabinet filled by Britannia's most legendary and historic leaders over the centuries. As the United Kingdom's "secretary of the treasury," his headache is as inflated as England's economy. From all this travail the U.K. has learned much. Other nations can too.

By the

RT. HON. DENIS HEALEY, MBE, MP, Chancellor of the Exchequer

LONDON — The experience of the last few years has shaken confidence all over the world in the possibility of getting back to the low levels of inflation and unemployment we enjoyed for nearly a quarter of a century after the end of World War II, when employment was sustained at record heights and the annual increase in prices was often little over 2 percent.

From 1973 to 1975, on the contrary, the average inflation for the industrial countries was 26 percent (12 percent a year), and this coincided with a big fall in living standards and the highest unemployment since the '30s. No one yet fully understands why we suffered from this combination of raging inflation and intolerable unemployment.

In the last 12 months unemployment has been rising less fast in nearly every country. The drop has been substantial in America, where inflation is also falling. But most countries are afraid of inflation rising again in the next 12 months. In the European Common Market as a whole inflation increased at an annual rate of 14 percent in the first four months of this year as compared with only 9 percent in the second half of last year.

Britain has been one of the exceptions to this rule. A year ago our inflation was running at the dizzy rate of 35 percent a year. It has already been cut by over half to just above 15 percent and we expect it to continue falling over the next 18 months, even though we are aiming at a rate of growth higher than we have ever sustained for so long in the past — and we are already on target to achieve it.

I make this point in no chauvinistic spirit. Inflation is still a good deal higher in Britain than in nearly all other industrial countries, and our post-war economic record has been far from brilliant. But I believe we have learned a lot from the mistakes of the past and perhaps some others may also learn from our experience, both good and bad.

The big lesson we have learned from the immediate past is that if the government allows demand to rise faster than the economy can sustain, you get bottlenecks all over inflation, overheating, roaring industry, a massive balance of payments deficit culminating in industrial paralysis. This is what happened to Britain in 1973 when the supply of money increased by 28 percent.

We are determined this shall never happen again. Last year, for example, the supply of money in Britain increased only 8 percent.

Now that recovery is under way, we believe we can do a great deal to reduce the risk of overheating by identifying possible bottlenecks in advance and taking action to remove them. So we have directed investment incentives to areas where capacity would otherwise be lacking. We have stockpiled some essential materials like steel and coal. And we have trebled the amount of money available for training people in the skills we shall need.

But we believe that the key to achieving our objectives is to involve both sides of industry directly in the major issues of social and economic policy. Each of us has a special role. The government has the prime responsibility for managing the economy so that it can grow steadily without inflation — which is essential if we are to achieve full employment and to create the conditions in which industry will invest. The government also has the responsibility for helping to satisfy the social needs of working people — which is essential if we are to let successfully on them to perform their role.

Providing this is done, the trade unions can be expected to act in such a way as to enable growth to proceed without refueling inflation. If the government conducts its economic and monetary policies so as to rule out inflation, the number of jobs the economy can support will depend on the average cost of each job. Because our trade unions attach such importance to full employment they have agreed to limit wage increases for two years running to levels well below what is needed to compensate for price increases in the preceding year.

That is why our Trade Union Congress recently voted by a majority of almost 18-1 to limit pay increases in the next wage round to only 4.5 percent — likely to be lower than in practically all the Western developed countries. They have done this because they know that this is the only way of getting back to full employment and enabling Britain once again to pay her way in the world.

Equally important is our industrial relations. Last year we lost only a quarter as many days through strikes as in 1972. So far this year we have lost little over half as many days as in the same period last year.

But the government could not have won this cooperation from the trade unions if it had not shared their views about social priorities — about the importance of reducing inequalities in wealth and income, and giving the pensioners and the families first claim on what the nation can afford for social spending.

Now we expect the other side of industry to keep the prices of their products as low as possible and to put the profits they make during the period of recovery into providing jobs, by increasing working capital and new investment. We are now making strenuous efforts to end the arm's-length relationship between the government, the employers and the trade unions, which is one of the main reasons for Britain's disappointing economic performance in the past. We are all working together to improve our industrial performance and to restructure the obsolete areas of our economy.

We still have a long way to go before we can feel satisfied. But I believe that this new type of social consensus may have lessons to offer to other countries whose confidence in the future of the Western economic system has been shaken by the events of recent years.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Washington Merry-Go-Round Watergate Springs New Leaks

by Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — One Watergate secret never leaked out during all the investigations that brought down ex-President Richard Nixon. It's the story of how Nixon used the notorious White House plumbers to try to discredit his detractors on Capitol Hill.

The intent was to prove that Nixon's congressional critics were violating national security. The plumbers enlisted the Pentagon's top sleuth, W. Donald Stewart, to investigate security leaks on Capitol Hill.

He found alleged security breaches in the offices of Sens. Frank Church, D-Ida., William Fulbright, D-Ark., Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and William Proxmire, D-Wis. But the investigation also caught the venerable Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., in an incident of political blackmail.

The stern, stately Stennis not only is a symbol of Senate rectitude, but he is a staunch defender of existing establishments.

He was ready, therefore, to defend the presidency against the ravages of Watergate. Nixon was so sure of Stennis' loyalty that he later sought an agreement, permitting the Mississippi senator to listen to the damning White House tapes and to rule whether they were incriminating.

After Stennis became implicated in the plumbers' probe, Nixon suddenly seemed to lose interest in it. The story of the abortive investigation is told by Stewart himself, now head of Stewart Security Services, in his unpublished memoirs.

It's a story that began in May, 1969, with the publication in the Washington Post of a report about scuttling atomic submarines. The sensitive information apparently came from a document that had been shipped to the Senate Armed Services Committee, which Stennis heads.

Stewart isolated seven military officers who had access to the document. Six of them offered to take lie detector tests. The seventh refused and hired a lawyer.

As Stewart zeroed in on the seventh officer, Stennis' office brought pressure on the Pentagon to halt the investigation. Stewart reported this backstage development in a memo for the White House plumbers.

He wrote that Stennis "became quite irritated because the Pentagon undertook (the) investigation." The angry senator threatened to investigate the Pentagon in retaliation. He would drop his investigation of

Coordinator works behind the scenes

Susan Huett of Birmingham, Ala., is program coordinator for the all-new Southern Kitchens Cooking School to be held at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 2 at Sikeston. The Daily Standard is the local co-sponsor for the show.

Behind every successful cooking school is an extensive promotional campaign, piloted by Susan. Months before the school takes place, Susan is at work coordinating every aspect of the production. Much of her work is "behind the scenes," but, nevertheless, very essential to the success of each school.

Susan is going into her second year as program coordinator of the Southern Kitchens Cooking School and still enjoys her varied duties. Her pre-show responsibilities involve scheduling the school, working with local merchants in promotion and publicity, and making final production preparations. The most enjoyable part, she says, is "just getting to know everyone involved with the cooking schools wherever we go."

She is a native of Montgomery, Ala. As a graduate of Samford University with a B.A. degree in speech and dramatic arts, Susan feels quite at home when the cooking school production begins. You can find her sharing her enthusiasm backstage, doing everything from fixing a short in the sound system to washing dishes.

Traveling gives Susan time to see some beautiful sights that the South has to offer. In her spare time she enjoys browsing for antiques, trying new recipes, and when weather permits, lots of water skiing.

Come to Southern Kitchens Sept. 2 at the Sikeston High School Field House, and meet this vivacious young lady who stays busy sharing her time with homemakers all across the South.

Cherry bounce is old-time treat

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Folks who enjoy reviving the old-time eating and drinking customs of some of the settlers of this country may be interested, this midsummer, in making Cherry Bounce. It's a potent concoction to "put by" when sweet cherries are in season, to serve in later months.

Abigail Adams, wife of John Adams, the second President of the United States, wrote about Cherry Bounce one January in a letter to her sister: "There is a kind of cake in fashion upon this day called New Years Cooky. This and cherry bounce as it is called is the old Dutch custom of treating their Friends upon the return of every New Year."

Apparently New Englanders also made Cherry Bounce. In her "Yankee Cookbook" Imogene Wolcott offers an old-fashioned recipe for it and adds: "As the lady who gave this recipe used to say: 'Hifalutin people call this cherry cordial, but I say it's cherry bounce.'"

Cherry Bounce may be made with sweet cherries, sugar, spice and brandy. Quaffers of the liquid drained from the cherries are likely to say that it is well-named: it really makes one feel bouncy!

CHERRY BOUNCE
3 pounds fresh sweet cherries
1 pound sugar
1 cinnamon stick, broken
2 teaspoons whole cloves
1 bottle (4-5 quart) brandy

Choose perfect cherries; wash, remove stems and dry completely. Do not pit. In a large crock that has a cover, layer the cherries, sugar and spices; add brandy; stir thoroughly. Cover and let stand at room temperature at least 2 months. Offer drained liquid as a liqueur; refrigerate cherries and use in various ways for desserts.

'Cold' wife can be defrosted

Dear Ann Landers: I liked your reply to "Bedroom Trouble Up North," the man who wanted to know if he should ask his wife to wear sexy undergarments to bed, like a garter belt and black nylon stockings.

If that was MY wife she would ask, "Under my pajamas or over them?" In our 25 years of marriage she hasn't made the slightest effort to make our sex life anything but routine. The woman refuses to read any books on the subject, because she "wouldn't look at that kind of garbage." Counseling is out. She says it's for sex maniacs. Otherwise she's a wonderful person, beautiful and intelligent and I love her very much. What's the answer? — Hungry

Dear H.: What's the question? I've said it before and I'll say it again. Many are cold but few are frozen. It's up to YOU to thaw the doll out. Turn on the heat, Buster.

Dear Ann: Recently our daughter was married. We struggled between giving her an exquisite wedding and what we could afford. What we could afford lost. To keep the guest list as small as possible, only adults were invited. Those who asked if they could bring their children were firmly but politely told, "no." All guests were invited to both the wedding and dinner.

Ten minutes before the ceremony, I saw a guest walk in with her son and his girlfriend whom we had never met. I was boiling, but said nothing. Our carefully arranged seating plan for the dinner had to be changed at the last minute. A very expensive day had become more expensive by $70 because of this uninvited boy (whom I hardly knew) and his girlfriend, a total stranger.

Are my feelings of resentment justified? Is there something I could have or SHOULD have done when the uninvited pair showed up? — Still Seething

Dear S.S.: Nothing. You were trapped, dearie. To have turned away the couple would have been gross.

I can understand your feelings of rage but the whole thing is history now, so forget it. Let's crown the cloud "Mrs. Chutzpah of 1976" and call it a day.

Dear Ann Landers: I enjoy your column very much. It has helped me, but not in the same way it has helped most other people. I came from a foreign country and learned how to read English from your articles. Your true-to-life writing is easy to follow. You don't use big words like many other writers.

I hope you will accept a suggestion from me because I see the world through the eyes of a newcomer. I happen to know your column appears in many foreign cities because I have seen it in my travels to Tokyo, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Mexico City and Caracas.

Would you please not publish letters about teenage girls getting with child, married women who have love affairs with the boss, husbands who ask their wives to wear black stockings to bed and other things that make Americans look immoral and crazy? Thank you very much. — Your Good Friend

Going to a wedding? Giving one? Or standing in one? Even if you're already married Ann Landers' completely new "The Bride's Guide" will answer questions about today's weddings. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Ann Landers

'Cold' wife can be defrosted

Dear Ann Landers: I liked your reply to "Bedroom Trouble Up North," the man who wanted to know if he should ask his wife to wear sexy undergarments to bed, like a garter belt and black nylon stockings.

If that was MY wife she would ask, "Under my pajamas or over them?" In our 25 years of marriage she hasn't made the slightest effort to make our sex life anything but routine. The woman refuses to read any books on the subject, because she "wouldn't look at that kind of garbage." Counseling is out. She says it's for sex maniacs. Otherwise she's a wonderful person, beautiful and intelligent and I love her very much. What's the answer? — Hungry

Dear H.: What's the question? I've said it before and I'll say it again. Many are cold but few are frozen. It's up to YOU to thaw the doll out. Turn on the heat, Buster.

Dear Ann: Recently our daughter was married. We struggled between giving her an exquisite wedding and what we could afford. What we could afford lost. To keep the guest list as small as possible, only adults were invited. Those who asked if they could bring their children were firmly but politely told, "no." All guests were invited to both the wedding and dinner.

Ten minutes before the ceremony, I saw a guest walk in with her son and his girlfriend whom we had never met. I was boiling, but said nothing. Our carefully arranged seating plan for the dinner had to be changed at the last minute. A very expensive day had become more expensive by $70 because of this uninvited boy (whom I hardly knew) and his girlfriend, a total stranger.

Are my feelings of resentment justified? Is there something I could have or SHOULD have done when the uninvited pair showed up? — Still Seething

Dear S.S.: Nothing. You were trapped, dearie. To have turned away the couple would have been gross.

I can understand your feelings of rage but the whole thing is history now, so forget it. Let's crown the clod "Mrs. Chutzpah of 1976" and call it a day.

Dear Ann Landers: I enjoy your column very much. It has helped me, but not in the same way it has helped most other people. I came from a foreign country and learned how to read English from your articles. Your true-to-life writing is easy to follow. You don't use big words like many other writers.

I hope you will accept a suggestion from me because I see the world through the eyes of a newcomer. I happen to know your column appears in many foreign cities because I have seen it in my travels to Tokyo, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Mexico City and Caracas.

Would you please not publish letters about teenage girls getting with child, married women who have love affairs with the boss, husbands who ask their wives to wear black stockings to bed and other things that make Americans look immoral and crazy? Thank you very much. — Your Good Friend

Dear Friend: The letters that appear in my column are human problems. They come from every one of the 50 states, as well as from Canada, Bermuda, Nassau — in fact from all over the world. There is no such thing as "an American problem" or "American craziness." Trouble and strange behavioral pattern are universal. Thank you for writing.

Going to a wedding? Giving one? Or standing in one? Even if you're already married Ann Landers's completely new "The Bride's Guide" will answer questions about today's weddings. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (24 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Sikeston Little League Tournament will start tonight at complex

The Sikeston Invitational Little League Tournament, annually one of the largest and most competitive in the area, will get underway tonight at the Sikeston Recreational Complex. Eight teams are entered in the 9-10 year-old division, while twelve teams are vying for the championship of the 11-12 year-old bracket. Entered in the 9-10 year-old division are Dexter, Bloomfield, New Hamburg, Paducah, Charleston, New Madrid, the Sikeston All-Stars and the Sikeston Aces.

In the 11-12 year-old division are Bloomfield, New Madrid, Bertrand, Poplar Bluff, Charleston, Illmo-Scott City, the Dexter Nationals, Paducah, Chaffee, New Hamburg, the Sikeston All-Stars, the Sikeston Aces and the Sikeston Americans.

This is the first year for Paducah to enter the tournament.

The Sikeston Aces, winners of last week's 9-10 division at the Scott City Invitational, will be the favorites to win again this week. Illmo-Scott City and Sikeston's All-Stars are the co-favorites in the 11-12 division. Illmo-Scott City won their own tournament, taking a pair of narrow decisions from the Sikeston team, which finished second.

Mike Foster, Sikeston's Little League commissioner, is the tournament director.

Saints split with Herrin, Ill; Bi-State playoffs start tonight

Spurred by the slugging of Billy Schatzley, Stan Hall and Mitch Walker, the slumping Sikeston Saints came back in the second game of their Sunday doubleheader against Herrin with an 8-3 win. When the Saints dropped the opener 8-2 it pushed their losing streak to four in the last five outings. But, all bad thoughts were erased when the trio of hitters accounted for seven of the eight runs and a matchwork lineup gave Sikeston the win needed to clinch second place in the Bi-State League standings.

Richard Blankenship started the Saints' first game and was effective for the first six frames. Then, back to back homers by he eighth and ninth-place Herrin hitters knocked the youngest Blankenship brother from the box and pinned him with a defeat.

A run had crossed the plate in the seventh, giving the hosts a 3-1 lead and runners on second and third, when the Saints decided to pass third baseman Don Lamer to set up a forceplay situation at every base. Doug Bogard promptly destroyed that strategy and the Saints hopes of a win by popping a 340-foot grand slam homerun over the leftfield fence. When Jim Davis followed with another homer two pitches later, Blankenship departed the scene. Meanwhile, the Saints were doing little with lefty starter Marty Hopkins. Hopkins' wildness—he walked six—finally caught up with him in the eighth. His reliever, Mike

Russell fanned one Saint with the sacks filed and got another to ground into a force, killing a bases loaded situation. Russell then got a 1-2-3 ninth and Herrin had its second straight victory over a playoff hopeful team. (The Eagles eliminated Ste. Genevieve from the playoffs Saturday night.)

The Saints batters came into the second game with a batting average of .170 for the last five games and their outlook was rapidly dimming. The momentum was quickly switched, however, by a four-run first inning.

With one out Walker singled to left. Schatzley pounded the first of three extra basehits when he doubled Walker to third. A walk to Jim Sautler was followed by a bases-clearing double to rightcenter by Hall and Sikeston had a quick 3-0 lead. A two-out single by Tom Masterson, who started for the first time this year, scored Hall and made the cushion for starter Bob Blankenship four runs.

Although four runs would have been enough, the Saints went after Herrin starter Dave Garanalía for two more tallies in the second. Donnie Taylor lined a single to left and was singled to third by Walker. Schatzley's second double scored Taylor and sent Walker to third. Sautler made the lead 6-0 with a sacrifice fly to right.

A two-out single by Rick Eisenbach in the sixth started the visitors' final rally. Eisenbach stole second and third while Mitch Walker was walking. Schatzley, who had only two extra basehits coming into the game, belted a triple to rightcenter to plate Eisenbach and Walker. It was the third time the Sikeston third sacker, Walker, crossed the plate. Sikeston led 8-0.

Herrin scored their only runs of the game in the bottom of the seventh. Fisher led off with a double on a two-strike pitch. With one gone, Russell singled him home. A double by Tripp gave Herrin runners on second and third and they both counted on a double by Herrin's 38-year old first sacker, Ralph McCormick. Despite three more hits in the last inning and two-thirds, Herrin wasn't able to score again.

Sikeston's newfound power man was happy about his hitting after the game: "I was glad to hit that well," said Schatzley. "But what I'm really proud about are all those doublings."

Despite the fact that Rick Eisenbach hadn't played short all year, the Sikeston keystone combination of Eisenbach and Schatzley, with one assist from Bob Blankenship, turned five doublings during the two games.

Sikeston quickly starts the league championship playoffs tonight at home in an 8 p.m. game against Anna. The two of three series, scheduled to start July 26, is two weeks late because of the numerous makeup games that were caused by the weather. Sikeston took three of four games against Anna during the regular season.

I-SC wins Scott City tourney

SCOTT CITY — Illmo-Scott City scored a pair of runs in the bottom of the third inning to break a 3-3 tie and win a 5-3 decision over the Sikeston All-Stars to win the Scott City Invitational Little League Tournament Sunday afternoon.

Scott City, who had defeated Sikeston 6-5 Saturday night to force the second championship game in the double elimination tournament, got back-to-back singles by Clayton and Workman to lead off the third. Both men scored on a one out error by Sikeston first baseman Nick Garner on Randy Modglin's grounder. Modglin was at third with one out, but Sikeston pitcher Mike Moore, who allowed only three hits in all, came back to strike out the last two batters of the inning.

Scott City had broken on top in the second with three runs, all off Sikeston starter Mike Moore, who got the loss. Workman led off with a hit, and three walks forced in a run. Relief pitcher Steve Green got the side out, but not until two other runners had scored, one on a ground ball and the other on an error.

Sikeston came back to tie it in the top of the third, scoring all three of their runs. John Watkins' walk was followed by a double by Steve Green. Garner then cleared the bases with a triple and scored when Gary Wolderding singled with two out.

Sikeston threatened to score in the fifth after a walk, a wild pitch and a ground out sent Green to third with two out, but Modglin induced Shawn McClain to ground to short to end the inning.

Gary Wolderding had two of Sikeston's four hits in the game, while Workman had two of I-SC's three safeties.

Watkins, Green Garner and McClain were all named to the All-Tournament Team off the All-Stars.

I-SC wins Scott City tourney

SCOTT CITY — Ilmo-Scott City scored a pair of runs in the bottom of the third inning to break a 3-3 tie and win a 5-3 decision over the Sikeston All-Stars to win the Scott City Invitational Little League Tournament Sunday afternoon.

Scott City, who had defeated Sikeston 6-5 Saturday night to force the second championship game in the double elimination tournament, got back to work singles by Clayton and Workman to lead off the third. Both men scored on a one out error by Sikeston first baseman Nick Garner or Randy Modglin's grounder. Modglin was pitcher with one out, but Sikeston pitcher Mike Moore, who allowed only three hits in all, came back to strike out the last two batters of the inning.

Scott City had broken on top in the second with three runs, all off Sikeston starter Mike Moore, who got the loss. Workman led off with a hit, and three walks forced in a run. Relief pitcher Steve Green got the tieout, but not until two other runners had scored, one on a ground ball and the other on an error.

Sikeston came back to tie it in the top of the third, scoring all three of their runs. John Watkins' walk was followed by a double by Steve Garner. Garner then cleared the bases with a triple and scored when Gary Wolfending singled with two out.

Sikeston threatened to score in the fifth after a walk, a wild pitch and a ground out sent Green to third with two out, but Modglin induced Shawn McClain to ground to short to end the inning.

Gary Wolfending had two of Sikeston's four hits in the game, while Workman had two of I-SC's three safeties.

Watkins, Green and Garner and McClain were all named to the All-Tournament Team off the All-Stars.

Six enshrined at Cooperstown today

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Robin Roberts and Bob Lemon, outstanding pitchers during the 1950s, and Fred Lindstrom, the youngest player in World Series history, were among the six new members inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame today.

Cal Hubbard, former American League umpire; Roger Connor, the 19th century home run king, and Oscar Charleston, a standout in the Negro Leagues during the 1920s and 1930s, also were honored in ceremonies presided over by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

It brought to 157 the number of those honored with plaques in the Hall of Fame and Museum building that drew thousands of visitors for this 37th annual celebration.

Roberts and Lemon, who reached the 20-victory mark 13 times between them, were elected to the Hall by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Lindstrom, Hubbard and Connor were named by the Hall's Veterans Committee and Charleston was picked by the shrine's Negro Leagues Committee.

Connor and Charleston were honored posthumously. Connor died in 1931 at age 73; Charleston died in 1954 at age 58.

Roberts, now 49, won 20 or more games six straight years beginning with the National League champion Philadelphia Phillies. The right-hander posted a 20-11 record for the 1950 Whiz Kids and enjoyed his best season in 1952 when he won 28 and lost seven.

He pitched for 19 seasons and had a 286-245 career mark. Later in his career he hurled for Baltimore, Houston and the Chicago Cubs.

Lemon, 55, passed over 11 previous writers in was the Cleveland Indians' opening day center fielder in 1946. But he turned to pitching and won 207 games, including seven consecutive seasons as a 20-game winner. He spent his entire playing career with Cleveland, helping them to American League pennants in 1948 and 1954. He compiled 128 losses and one no-hitter.

Lindstrom, 70, played third base for the New York Giants in the 1924 World Series at age 18. He collected 10 hits against the Washington Senators. His top year came in 1930, when he batted .379 with 22 home runs and 106 runs batted in.

Hubbard, a burly 6-foot-3, 250-pounder in his days as a two-way National Football League lineman and for 16 years an American League umpire, is now 75 and uses a cane. He served as supervisor of AL umpires from 1954 to 1969 after suffering an eye injury in a hunting accident which ended his days behind the plate.

Connor, a first baseman, held the major league career home record of 138 until Babe Ruth surpassed him in 1921. He had a 325 lifetime batting mark from 1878 to 1897. He played for Troy, N.Y., Philadelphia and St. Louis in the National League.

Charleston, barred from major league baseball because of his race, was a hard-hitting outfielder who played and later managed for several clubs in the Negro Leagues. Although statistics are scarce, available figures show he batted well over .300 most seasons and occasionally was in the .400 class.

Girls teams begin practice for fall sports Monday

Practice for all three fall girls sports at Sikeston High School will begin next Monday, August 16, school officials reported today.

Templeton called up

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Gary Templeton is expected to take over the shortstop's job for the St. Louis Cardinals after being called up Sunday from the National League club's Tulsa farm team.

The elevation of Templeton, considered one of the top prospects in the Cardinal farm organization, was ordered recently by team owner Gussie Busch in an effort to review the club's talent.

Templeton was batting .307 at Tulsa.

To make room for Templeton, the Cardinals returned Doug Clary to Tulsa. Veteran shortstop Don Kessinger is expected to be moved to second base to fill in for injured regular Mike Tyson.

Volleyball coach Jan. Merrick announced that workouts for the 1976 net season will get underway at 9 a.m. Monday morning at the girl's gymnasium at the high school.

Tennis coach Berta Schuereberg said that tennis practice will begin at 8:00 a.m. at the high school courts, while golf coach Rosalie Snider announced that golf practice will begin Monday at 10:00 at the country club course.

All athletes must bring proof of insurance and physical examinations before beginning practice.

The girls will join the Sikeston Bulldogs as SHS teams beginning practice Monday. Football workouts also begin the 16th, coach Terry Smith announced last week.

Jefferson City stops Arkansas City to win Midwest Plains crown

CHAFFEE — Jefferson City, Missouri made the most of only seven hits Sunday afternoon, scoring six runs and winning a 6-4 verdict over Arkansas City, Kansas to win the Midwest Plains Regional 13-Year-Old Babe Ruth League Tournament at Chaffee's Harmon Field.

Jefferson City, needing only one victory to win the tournament, took their second game of the tournament from Arkansas City and completed another tournament undefeated. They had won the Missouri State Tournament in Dexter last week without a loss.

Joel Gibson, who had two of Arkansas City's eight hits in the game, singled in the first to score Troy Howerton and make it 1-0 in favor of the Kansas team. Dan Beckman's basehit drove home Glen Grassie for Jeff City in the bottom of the inning and tied it at 1-1.

Both teams scored again in the second, but this time, Jefferson City got the best of it. Jim O'Brien, the Arkansas City pitcher, drove in a run with a single in the top of the frame, but Jefferson City bounced back to get three. Todd Mueller walked and stole second, then went to third when the throw went into centerfield. Roland Morrow reached on an error as Mueller crossed the plate with the tying run, and Ken Epple was hit by a pitch from O'Brien. Jeff City catcher Todd Eskina, voted the tournament's Most Valuable Player, drove home both men with a basehit to make it a three-run inning.

Jefferson City made it a four-run lead in the fifth. Grassie tripled to lead off and scored on a single by Rick Clarkson, who went to second when Boeckman grounded out to first. Joe Henderson then singled to score Clarkson.

In the top of the seventh, Arkansas City rallied to get two off Jefferson City hurler Ken Epple and nearly tied it. A double by Harvey Fields and a single by Doug Darst made the score 6-3, and Gibson followed with a one-out basehit to narrow the gap to 6-4. Arkansas City had runners at first and third with two out, but the runner on first was gunned out trying to steal by Eskina to end the game.

Arkansas City had knocked off Chaffee-Illmo-Scott City 7-4 and Ottumwa, Iowa 5-0 Saturday night to earn the right to play Jefferson City for the championship.

Arkansas City won the sportsmanship trophy.

Martin, Schmidt help Phillies gain series split with Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Jerry Martin drove in the winning run for the Philadelphia Phillies, but a swing of Mike Schmidt's bat stole the show.

The muscular Schmidt, zeroing in on a third National League home run title, swatted a two-run blast in the fourth inning that had the St. Louis Cardinals shaking their heads long after their 3-2 Sunday defeat.

"It was a good pitch, out over the plate and low," Schmidt remarked after making Cards starter Harry Rasmussen the victim of his 30th home run.

"I'd made up my mind I was going to try to pull the ball," he added. "I was kind of looking for what he threw, because he'd gotten me out on the same pitch the time before."

Preceding the blow, representing Philadelphia's second hit, Rasmussen had set down 10 straight batters and yielded only Garry Maddox's single.

"It was a good pitch, but not to him, I think," the St. Louis pitcher acknowledged of his delivery, a curve, to Schmidt.

"He impressed me with his strength, particularly in his wrists. I couldn't believe how fast the ball got out of the park off his bat."

Schmidt's blow established a 2-1 Phils edge that held until Bobby Tolan's throwing error on Rasmussen's bunt, an attempted sacrifice, let the Cards tie in the seventh.

Winner Steve Carlton, 13-4, then worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth and Martin connected in the ninth for a sacrifice fly off Al Hrabosky after Greg Luzinski singled and Jay Johnstone doubled off Bill Greif, 2-7, the second St. Louis pitcher.

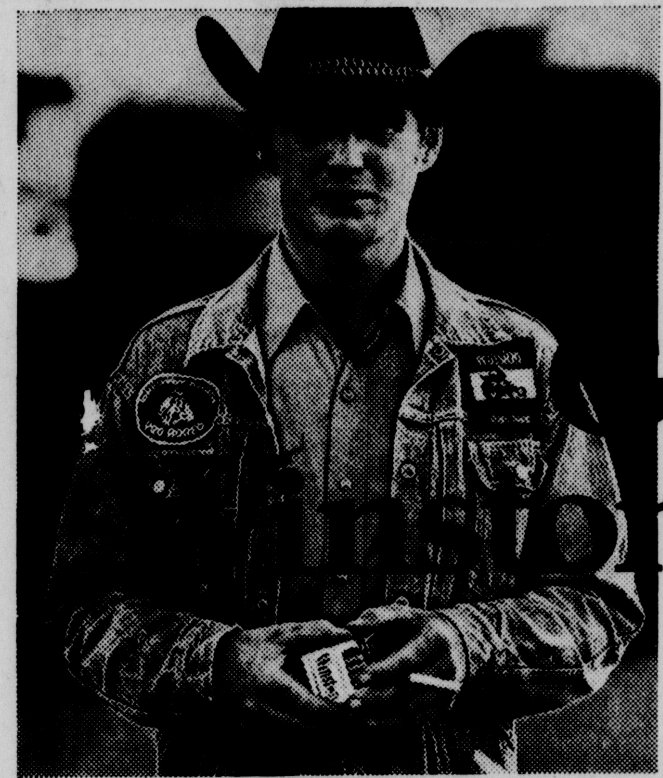

"His ball takes off," Martin, a pinch-hitter, said in reference to the Hrabosky fast ball he hit. "I was trying to keep from popping up because I had against him a couple of times before."

"That's what I wanted him to do, but it was a long pop-up," responded ruefully when praised of Martin's remarks. "I wanted the pitch more up. But he's being modest. He's hit me hard."

The victory by Philadelphia concluded a 7-5 road swing and enabled the Phils to gain a 2-2 series split with their rival.

"He's an off-speed pitch hitter," St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst mused, still reflecting on the Rasmussen delivery Schmidt smashed for his prodigious homer.

A double by Harvey Fields and a single by Doug Darst made the score 6-3, and Gibson followed with a one-out basehit to narrow the gap to 6-4. Arkansas City had runners at first and third with two out, but the runner on first was gunned out trying to steal by Eskina to end the game.

Arkansas City had knocked off Chaffee-Illmo-Scott City 7-4 and Ottumwa, Iowa 5-0 Saturday night to earn the right to play Jefferson City for the championship.

Arkansas City won the sportsmanship trophy.

Royals split with Chisox

CHICAGO (AP) — Manager Whitey Herzog winces every time someone suggests his Kansas City Royals are a cinch to clinch the American League West divisional title.

"Heck, I'd like to be the first to say we're a shoo-in," said Herzog Sunday after the Royals had split a doubleheader with the Chicago White Sox, winning the second game 7-1 after a 5-2 loss in the opener.

"But we've still got to win 26 or 27 more games to do it," he said. "If we were healthy and I had guys like Steve Busby and Paul Splittorff in the regular pitching rotation, I'd say we're in. But they're not healthy."

"Look, we could have lost the second game of the doubleheader and we'd have had three losses in a row. Those things can happen."

The Royals, however, averted a three-game losing streak because of Hal McRae and Al Fitzmorris. McRae tripled in three runs when the Royals wrapped up the nightcap with five runs in the third.

They spiced it up when Dave Nelson stole home with an unneeded run in the eighth. Fitzmorris scattered eight hits to join Jim Palmer of Baltimore and Ed Figueroa of New York as the American League's only 14 game winners.

"He's amazing," said Herzog of Fitzmorris. "You saw it out there. It's a struggle but he gets there. He won 16 last year and has a good chance for 20 because he figures to get at least nine more starts."

Jack Brohamer's two-run single in the sixth inning provided the winning margin in the first game for the White Sox who finally introduced their short pants uniforms.

Terry Forster shutout the Royals on six hits in the six innings he worked to boost his record to 2-8. Relievers Clay Carroll and Dave Hamilton were both ineffective so Manager Paul Richards called on Rich Gossage.

Gossage, making only his second relief appearance this season, gained the save by allowing only one walk while retiring the last six batters.

Richards, whose White Sox have a pretty good record of four wins, two losses and five splits, cast a vote against doubleheaders.

"Doubleheaders have lost their appeal to both the players and the fans," said Richards, who earlier cast a vote for the short pants uniforms although the Sox went to their standard garb in the second game.

"They're comfortable and great for warm weather," said Richards. "But I was afraid it would get too chilly by the time the second game ended."

The Sox hit the road for a two-game series at Cleveland. Ken Brett, 6-6, will oppose Jim Bibby tonight.

The Royals will be featured in tonight's nationally televised game and will host the New York Yankees with Dennis Leonard, 13-4, facing Ken Holtzman, 9-7, in the first of a three-game set which could be billed as a preview of the American League playoffs.

Experts warn the country

Public pensions -the cost explosion

Part I: The Cost Explosion

By LEE MITGANG

Associated Press Writer

Every man, woman and child in the United States paid $170

in tax dollars last year to cover the steadily mounting pension costs for the nation's city, state and federal employees.

Many experts are warning that the country simply cannot bear the burden. They say the public pension debt could sink cities, states and even the federal government under a mountain of ill-considered promises and generous benefits.

The per-capita tax bill included $45 for the cost of state and local pensions alone. The annuual bill for these pensions has gone up more than fivefold in the past 15 years -- from $1.6

billion to a current $9.1 billion.

The other $125 of the tax burden was for federal employee pension plans, according to the National Taxpayers Union, a private, nonprofit research group. The group estimates that Americans will pay about $25 billion this year to cover the current retirement costs of federal employees.

Even these figures don't reveal the whole bill because they do not cover what Americans owe public workers in form of future pension commitments.

The taxpayers union estimates that the 21 major federal employee pension plans owe all members, either active or retired, $499 billion more than the plans have on hand. This is $2-495 in unfunded debt for every American, money that over the years will have to be covered by tax dollars.

At the city level, each resident in Boston owed city workers $1,725 as of this year in unfunded pension debts. In Pittsburgh, the per-resident bill was $735; in Los Angeles, $588; in Miami, $431; in Chicago, $375;

in Atlanta, $368; and in New York City, $1,000, according to a study of state and local plans by the bond brokerage firm of

John Nuveen & Co. The national average per capita pension debt to city workers was $800.

The study shows that each state resident in Massachusetts owes state employees $667 in unfunded pension debt. In Washington, the debt is $440; in Illinois, $276; in California, $214;

in Wisconsin, $195; and in New York State, $146. The national average per capita pension debt for the 50 states is about $500.

The figures result from dividing the "unfunded liability" of a particular pension plan by the city or state population. The unfunded liability is simply the difference between the pension fund's assets, and an actual estimate of what the fund will eventually have to pay to all its participants, either active or retired.

In general, the lower the unfunded liability, the closer the plan is to being on a sound footing. Ideally, there would be no

unfunded liability, meaning that if the plan were to shut down, it could pay all its debts

in cash on the spot. Texas,

Georgia and New Hampshire

have state systems that are fully funded.

Some, like the three city

plans in Washington, D.C., are funded on a "pay-as-you-go"

basis; they do not estimate their future debts and obligations and have built up huge, unfunded liabilities.

Unfortunately, like an installment loan on a car or dishwasher, the longer the pension bill remains unpaid, the larger it grows. The public pension debt grows with every salary increase, every rise in inflation, every drop in the stock and bond markets, with changes in life expectancy rates and re-irement patterns. Taxes pay for some of those increases, pension plans for others and public employees themselves

MOREHOUSE -- A well baby clinic will be conducted from 9 a.m. to noon Thursday by the New Madrid County Health Department in the Kiwanis Club building on Beech Street.

For information, parents of eligible children are requested to contact Mrs. Helen Owens by phone at numbers 667-5041 or 667-5023.

Ron Cook

Featured topic for Tuesday night's Sikeston Kiwanis Club meeting will be "America's Space Shuttle -- A Program Today to Benefit Your Tomorrow". Ron Cook, Supervisor of space communications for Beech Aircraft Corp. of Wichita, Kan., will be the speaker.

The meeting will begin at 6 p.m. at the El Capri Restaurant, 531 N. Main St.

On shuttle missions, according to Cook, data will be collected for use in advancing the fields of medicine, weather forecasting, natural resources, agriculture and other areas connected with technological advancement.

The 30- to 45-minute program is a non-commercial, non-technical, laymen-oriented slide presentation.

Cook holds a bachelor of liberal arts degree from Wichita State University.

An active member of Toastmasters International, he was named Toastmaster of the Year in Kansas and Missouri in 1974.

He joined Beech Aircraft's management development department in March 1973 and was promoted to supervisor-employee counseling and communications a year later. In the fall of 1974, Beech Aircraft committed itself to promoting a better public understanding of the country's newest space program, and Cook was chosen to direct this effort.

The case of the ro-busty male

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Officer Reilly spotted a curvaceous blond sitting quietly in a cocktail lounge looking just too good to be true.

Deciding to investigate, he soon discovered that the fussy female was actually a ro-busty male. And, without ado, he arrested Charley -- a female impersonator -- for violating an ordinance that made it a crime for any person to dress as a member of the opposite sex.

"He looked like a living doll," testified Reilly in court. "Not a girlwatcher in the country wouldn't have been fooled."

"Maybe not," responded a medical expert in Charley's defense, "but that wasn't his intention. Unlike a gay man, Charley's a true transsexual -- a female trapped in a male body."

"Feeling like a female and dressing like a female made him feel more normal and natural. Consequently, his wearing makeup and female clothing shouldn't make him a criminal. It was the result of an irresistible impulse or a lack of willpower."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict deceptive Charley of the crime charged?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that a man cannot be held criminally liable for a mental defect over which he has little practical control. And, in this case, concluded the judge, the medical evidence indicated that Charley, in doing his own thing, had no control over his conduct and it was not a deliberate act.

The rise of inflation in the 1960s and 1970s has prompted nearly all federal pension plans and many state and local plans to grant postretirement cost-of-living adjustments.

In a study of nine major cities, Jump found that only two -- Washington, D.C. and Los Angeles -- grant a liberal enough cost-of-living adjustment to keep pace with inflation. Most cities and states put a cap on how large the annual adjustment can be. Otherwise-liberal New York City has banned such adjustments altogether for employees hired after 1968 and another generous pension city, Philadelphia, has no adjustment whatever.

By far the best cost-of-living scheme is offered to federal retirees. Ed Husted, chief actuary of the U.S. Civil Service Retirement Plan, says that since Dec. 1965 when retirement pay was first allowed to keep pace with the Consumer Price Index, postretirement allowances have added an extra $31.4 billion to the pension fund's unfunded debt. That means each American owes federal servants $157 just from those allowances.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, Aug. 9, the 222nd day of 1976. There are 144 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1945, the United States dropped the second atomic bomb on Japan, destroying more than half the city of Nagasaki.

On this date:
In 1638, a native of Holland, Jonas Bronck, became the first settler in what is now The Bronx, New York.

In 1842, a border dispute between the United States and Canada was settled in the Webster-Ashburton Treaty.

In 1898, Spain formally accepted peace terms ending the Spanish-American War.
In 1902, Edward VII was crowned King of England following the death of his mother, Queen Victoria.

In 1942, the British arrested the Indian nationalist, Mohandas Gandhi. He was kept in custody until 1944.

In 1973, the U.S. Senate Watergate Committee filed a lawsuit to force President Richard Nixon to produce White House tapes subpoenaed by the committee.

Ten years ago: A grand jury in Cleveland reported that racial violence in the Ohio city had been organized and exploited by a small group of trained and disciplined professionals in the business of stirring up trouble.

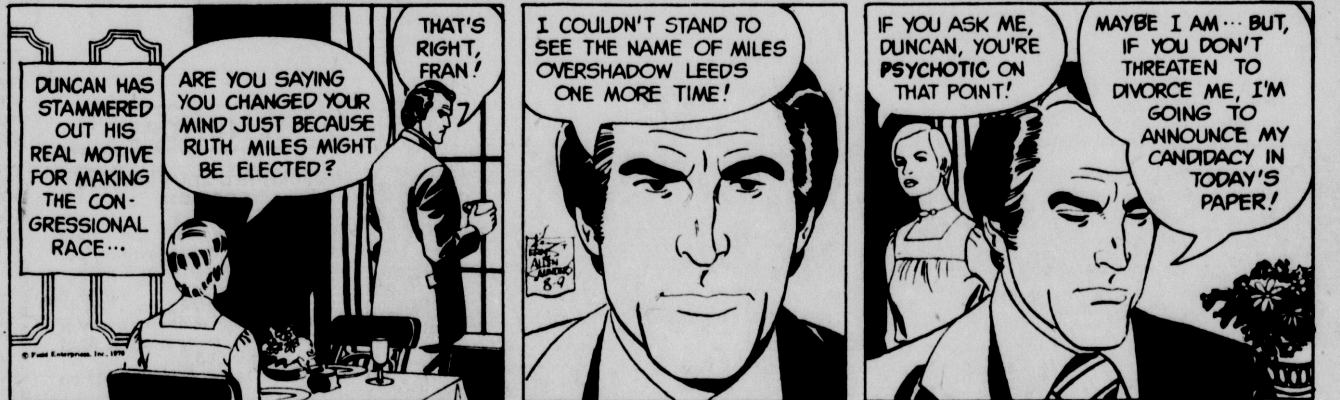

Five years ago: The worst riots in months broke out in Belfast in Northern Ireland, and at least 13 people were killed.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the British superintendent of Indian Affairs, Guy Johnson, predicted that the only Indians the American Colonists could count on in fighting would be the small number which had come under the influence of New England missionaries.

Personalized Sandals Enliven Fashion Scene

THEIR OWN THING—High school students came up with a variety of ideas in a national contest for decorating wooden-sole exercise sandals. Winners, clockwise from bottom, are colorful fruit design; ethnic look embroidered denim; and a Western bandana "tie-up."

CHICAGO (AP) — Young people, busy creating "one-of-a-kind" personalized fashions by embroidering their jeans and stenciling their T-shirts, are now decorating their sandals with everything from bandanas to stars and stripes.

Other teens celebrated the nation's 200th birthday by going patriotic with red, white and blue designs. Sandals were decorated with stripes, emblazoned with stars and etched with the "Spirit of '76." To honor the military, one student went further and covered his sandal with infantry insignia.

Natural fabrics received a good share of attention among the sandal decorating ideas. Nubby textures like tweed and burlap were suggested for the sandal strap. Hand-tooled designs and Indian symbols were other popular looks.

An interest in the environment also predominated in the teen-agers' sandal designs. Students used sunshine or blue sky and cloud motifs, along with a variety of flowery variations on both the strap and sole. But probably the most authentic of these was an outdoor scene of woods and stream, topped off with "fake" shrubbery (the kind used to build model train sets).

Personalized Sandals Enliven Fashion Scene

THEIR OWN THING—High school students came up with a variety of ideas in a national contest for decorating wooden-sole exercise sandals. Winners, clockwise from bottom, are colorful fruit design; ethnic look embroidered denim; and a Western bandana "tie-up."

CHICAGO (AP) — Young people, busy creating "one-of-a-kind" personalized fashions by embroidering their jeans and stenciling their T-shirts, are now decorating their sandals with everything from bandanas to stars and stripes.

The many moods of "sandal art" surfaced in a national design contest in which high school students submitted hundreds of ideas for decorating the wooden-sole exercise sandals that have become a popular accessory with casual jeans and cut-offs.

Winning entry in the contest was a tasty serving of colorful fruits painted on the sandal strap and wooden sole — including a partially eaten piece of watermelon on the toes.

Creator was 17-year-old Laurie Van Sant of Trenton, N. J., who was awarded a college scholarship by Scholl, co-sponsor of the event with Seventeen Magazine's At-School publication.

Another student took off on the current ethnic fashion look by designing a "needlepoint" look of embroidery for the strap, then engraving the sides of the sole. This design won second place honors for Norma Salvatto, 17, of Yonkers, N. Y. Other entries reflected the popular Western influence by using hand-tooled leathers, caulk prints and even a cotton bandana. In fact, third-prize winner Holly Hopke, 17, of Florence, Ky., actually tied up her sandal strap with a dime-store bandana.

Other teens celebrated the nation's 200th birthday by going patriotic with red, white and blue designs. Sandals were decorated with stripes, emblazoned with stars and etched with the "Spirit of '76." To honor the military, one student went further and covered his sandal with infantry insignia.

Natural fabrics received a good share of attention among the sandal decorating ideas. Nubby textures like tweed and burlap were suggested for the sandal strap. Hand-tooled designs and Indian symbols were other popular looks.

An interest in the environment also predominated in the teen-agers' sandal designs. Students used sunshine or blue sky and cloud motifs, along with a variety of flowery variations on both the strap and sole. But probably the most authentic of these was an outdoor scene of woods and stream, topped off with "fake" shrubbery (the kind used to build model train sets).

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — If Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martynowicz do not remember their wedding day, it won't be for lack of effort on the part of the groom's mother, Mrs. Joan Martynowicz.

TULE ELK

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The arrival of a cattle truck bearing 18 tule elk at San Luis National Wildlife Refuge recently signaled the return of these rare members of the deer family after an absence of almost a century to their ancestral home in the northern San Joaquin Valley.

Prior to their transfer to San Luis Refuge, they had lived in a pen at the San Diego Wild Animal Park.

Once widespread in California's Great Central Valleys, the tule elk came near extermination under the guns of meat hunters in the late 1800s.

The present population of the elk in the whole world is estimated at a little over 500.

construct the breakwater part of the project.

Construction, begun in 1971, has been hampered by annual siltation building up in the harbor area. Admitting that this problem is partially the result of engineering errors, the Corps has diverted funds from other projects and agreed to make modifications to see if the siltation can be corrected and the project completed.

In addition to the $226,000 in bond funds already appropriated, Wilson said additional funds of nearly $250,000 will be needed to complete the project, which includes construction of a restaurant, bait and tackle shop and boat repair service, as well as completion of silt cleanup on slopes, dock repair, bringing electrical service to the docks, lagoon repair and other site improvements.

Hurricane Belle moves Northward

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Hurricane Belle, packed with 110 mile-per-hour winds, moved northward today on a course that would spare Outer Banks from the storm's strongest winds.

At midmorning, the small-but-potent storm was moving at 20 miles per hour, about 60 miles south-southeast of here, aimed at a brush with the Outer Banks and the Virginia Capes and toward a head-on collision with Long Island, N.Y., and southern New England.

"If it keeps on coming straight north without any deviation it will pass somewhere 25 miles to 50 miles east of Hatteras," said John Hope of the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

A close brush with the Outer Banks could produce hurricane-force winds of 74 miles per hour or more and tides as much as five feet above normal, Hope said.

"We don't want to take them (Hatteras) off the hook at all," Hope said. "The slightest deviation to the west would produce winds of over 100 miles per hour and much higher tides."

Many of the 10,000 tourists estimated to have been on the narrow string of islands were evacuated without incident before daybreak.

Others visitors, along with many of the 2,500 to 3,000 permanent island residents, stood their ground as gale-force winds and torrential rains roared in ahead of Belle.

SCARC seeks grant for day activity center

DEXTER — The Stoddard County Association for Retarded Citizens (SCARC) discussed an internal rule change, a proposed grant and the group's annual fund-raising drive at a meeting held Thursday.

Shirlene Stubbs, publicity chairman of SCARC, said the fund-raising drive will begin Aug. 23 in Bernie with a house-to-house canvass and that a week-long house-to-house canvass in Dexter will begin Aug. 30.

The group is seeking a grant to be used to start a day activity center for handicapped adults who are unable to participate in Sheltered Workshop activities.

Work on the grant, however, has just started and is only in the beginning stages.

It was decided that a vote will be taken at the September general meeting to amend the SCARC constitution regarding absenteeism of executive board members at board meetings.

A suggestion under consideration would permit a member who misses more than three consecutive meetings to be removed from the board and a new member appointed.

Dorothy McClard has been appointed president of the organization, replacing Paf Kiersey, who resigned to move out of state.

Elected to other positions Thursday were June Moore of Bernie as secretary and Joe Weber of Dexter as treasurer.

It was also reported that orders for calendars and Christmas cards are now being accepted. Contact Mrs. Vera Staggs at telephone number 624-2270 for calendars and Mrs. Donna West at 624-3437 for Christmas cards.

After the meeting, a cake and a watch were presented to Mrs. Kiersey by the members of the group.

2 SeMo State students killed

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Two Southeast Missouri State University students were killed Saturday night when the car in which they were riding slammed head on into a tractor-trailer truck on Illinois Highway 146 about a half mile east of East Cape Girardeau, Ill.

Alexander County Coroner Eugene Chresman identified the victims as Bradley J. Lynch, 23, of 1830 Marietta and Terri L. Sanders, 20, of 235 S. Spanish.

Lynch was the son of Cape Girardeau Fire Department Capt. and Mrs. Calvin W. Lynch. Miss Sanders is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Sanders of Hazelwood.

The driver of the semi, which was loaded with gasoline tanks, James O. Wright, 35, of Bardwell, Ky., escaped injury.

The wreckage blocked traffic for an hour and 15 minutes almost to the Highway 146-3 intersection to the east and to the Mississippi River bridge to the west.

Illinois State Trooper George

Eaker said Lynch, the driver of the car, was traveling west when he attempted to pass a long line of cars and his vehicle struck the eastbound truck in the eastbound lane.

The driver of the truck attempted to avoid the collision, but was unable to veer into the opposite lane, the trooper said.

The accident occurred at 6:49 p.m., and waiting traffic began moving again shortly after 8 p.m.

Leaking gasoline from both vehicles posed a threat of fire, but fire trucks from East Cape Girardeau and McClure, Ill., were at the scene washing away spilled fuel as members of Gene Huckstep's extricating crew and employees of Cape County Private Ambulance Service, Inc., worked to free the bodies.

Wright said he was headed from Cape Girardeau to Cairo, Ill., in the truck belonging to Martin Oil Co., of Carbondale, Ill.

The bodies were taken to Ford & Sons Funeral Home.

The accident occurred when a southbound tractor-trailer truck driven by Marion Groves, 35, of Bridgeton started to pass a car driven by Robert Hulse, 22, of Star City, Ark. The springs on right front of the tractor-rig came loose, causing it to swerve into the back of the Hulse vehicle. The truck then overturned and fell on a southbound car driven by Gwendolyn Parks, 33, of Irondale.

Receiving injuries were Hulse and a passenger in his vehicle, Norman Gaston, 36, of Star City, Parks; and two passengers in the Parks car, Jacqueline Parks, 14, daughter of the driver, and Daniel Parks, 10, son of the driver.

All five were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital, where they were treated and released.

Two Malden youths received minor injuries in a one-car accident at 6 a.m. Saturday on a country road two miles southwest of Parma.

The accident occurred when the right side of a southbound car driven by Michael W. Flowers, 19, of Malden struck a stump located on the right edge of the road.

The driver and a passenger, Kelley Bennett, 15, received injuries and were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Two persons received moderate injuries in a one-vehicle accident involving a pedestrian at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, on North Goldsmith Street in Malden.

The accident took place when a northbound car driven by Larry Joe Burrow, 25, of Malden ran off the left side of the road and struck a parked vehicle. The impact caused a pedestrian, Leona Criglar, 20, of Malden, to be knocked to the ground.

The pedestrian and Burrow suffered injuries and were taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

Two Des Arc residents received minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 10:45 p.m. Saturday on Highway 49 four miles north of Piedmont when a car driven by Ronald Ruble, 17, of Vulcan ran off the right side of the road, then came back across the center line and struck a northbound pickup driven by James E. Brooks, 56, of Des Arc.

Brooks and a passenger in his vehicle, Johnny Morris, 17, of Des Arc suffered injuries and were taken to Wayne Medical Center in Piedmont.

A one-year-old child was seriously injured when struck by a car at 6:15 p.m. Friday on Route 00 four miles north of Fredericktown.

She was taken to Farmington Community Hospital.

Two motorists were injured at 3 p.m. Friday on Highway 34 one and a half miles west of Piedmont when an eastbound car driven by James R. McIntosh, 86, of Ellington attempted a left turn in front of a westbound pickup driven by Keith P. Cherly, 23, of St. Louis.

Both drivers suffered minor injuries and were taken to Wayne County Medical Center.

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — If Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martynowicz do not remember their wedding day, it won't be for lack of effort on the part of the groom's mother, Mrs. Joan Martynowicz.

Mrs. Martynowicz, who wanted to do "something they'd remember all their lives," had the couple flown by helicopter to a restaurant for a wedding breakfast

TULE ELK

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The arrival of a cattle truck bearing 18 tule elk at San Luis National Wildlife Refuge recently signaled the return of these rare members of the deer family after an absence of almost a century to their ancestral home in the northern San Joaquin Valley.

Prior to their transfer to San Luis Refuge, they had lived in a pen at the San Diego Wild Animal Park.

Once widespread in California's Great Central Valleys, the tule elk came near extermination under the guns of meat hunters in the late 1800s.

The present population of the elk in the whole world is estimated at a little over 500.

construct the breakwater part of the project.

Construction, begun in 1971, has been hampered by annual siltation building up in the harbor area. Admitting that this problem is partially the result of engineering errors, the Corps has diverted funds from other projects and agreed to make modifications to see if the siltation can be corrected and the project completed.

In addition to the $226,000 in bond funds already appropriated, Wilson said additional funds of nearly $250,000 will be needed to complete the project, which includes construction of a restaurant, bait and tackle shop and boat repair service, as well as completion of silt cleanup on slopes, dock repair, bringing electrical service to the docks, lagoon repair and other site improvements.

Hurricane Belle moves Northward

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Hurricane Belle, packed with 110 mile-per-hour winds, moved northward today on a course that would spare North Carolina's vulnerable Outer Banks from the storm's strongest winds.

At midmorning, the small-but-potent storm was moving at 20 miles per hour, about 60 miles south-southeast of here, aimed at a brush with the Outer Banks and the Virginia Capes and toward a head-on collision with Long Island, N.Y., and southern New England.

"If it keeps on coming straight north without any deviation it will pass somewhere 25 miles to 50 miles east of Hatteras," said John Hope of the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

A close brush with the Outer Banks could produce hurricane-force winds of 74 miles per hour or more and tides as much as five feet above normal, Hope said.

"We don't want to take them (Hatteras) off the hook at all," Hope said. "The slightest deviation to the west would produce winds of over 100 miles per hour and much higher tides."

Many of the 10,000 tourists estimated to have been on the narrow string of islands were evacuated without incident before daybreak.

Others visitors, along with many of the 2,500 to 3,000 permanent island residents, stood their ground as gale-force winds and torrential rains roared in ahead of Belle.

2 SeMo State students killed

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Two Southeast Missouri State University students were killed Saturday night when the car in which they were riding slammed head on into a tractor-trailer truck on Illinois Highway 146 about a half mile east of East Cape Girardeau, Ill.

Alexander County Coroner Eugene Chresman identified the victims as Bradley J. Lynch, 23, of 1830 Marietta and Terri L. Sanders, 20, of 235 S. Spanish.

Lynch was the son of Cape Girardeau Fire Department Capt. and Mrs. Calvin W. Lynch. Miss Sanders is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Sanders of Hazelwood.

The driver of the semi, which was pulling a loaded gasoline tanker, James O. Wright, 35, of Bardwell, Ky., escaped injury.

The wreckage blocked traffic for an hour and 15 minutes almost to the Highway 146-3 intersection to the east and to the Mississippi River bridge to the west.

Illinois State Trooper George

Eaker said Lynch, the driver of the car, was traveling west when he attempted to pass a long line of cars and his vehicle struck the eastbound truck in the eastbound lane.

The driver of the truck attempted to avoid the collision, but was unable to veer into the opposite lane, the trooper said.

The accident occurred at 6:49 p.m., and waiting traffic began moving again shortly after 8 p.m.

Leaking gasoline from both vehicles posed a threat of fire, but fire trucks from East Cape Girardeau and McClure, Ill., were at the scene washing away spilled fuel as members of Gene Huckstep's extricating crew and employees of Cape County Private Ambulance Service, Inc., worked to free the bodies.

Wright said he was headed from Cape Girardeau to Cairo, Ill., in the truck belonging to Martin Oil Co., of Carbondale, Ill.

The bodies were taken to Ford & Sons Funeral Home.
